

Week 1- The Wild Robot

What is something new you have experienced in the last year that you didn't think you would enjoy, but you actually did?

Can you think of a time you had to choose between doing what was expected and doing what was right?

Have you ever felt like you weren't built or ready for something that life threw your way?

Roz had to change the way she was programmed, How can someone begin to "override their programming" in real life?

Read Romans 12:2

What do you think this verse means in your own words?

What might it look like to "let God change the way you think" in middle school life?

What kind of change do you think God might want to do in your life?

What's one way you can choose to live "from the heart" this week instead of just doing what's easy or expected?
